Bone and Bread - House of Anansi Press

In her debut novel Bone and Bread (House of Anansi), Saleema Nawaz folds readers into the story of two sisters: Beena, the eldest, the dreamer, the teenaged mom; and Sadhana, the younger sister, the artist, the anorexic, the perfectionist. Nawaz traces their lives from their childhood apartment over their parents' bagel shop in Montreal and into their divergent adult paths, telling the ...

The thing about Saleema Nawaz's Bone & Bread is that I expected a book, (your typical book maybe?) about the larger sister and the anorexic sister. The tension between the two. How they navigated high school. How they were approached, or not, by boys. How they overcame their struggles and grew out of it all.
