The history of the chemical bond. When discussing the history of chemistry it's always dangerous to point to the specific origin of an idea, since by its very definition, the scientific process relies upon the gradual refinement of ideas that came before. However, as is the case with a number of such ideas, one can point to certain seminal moments, and in the case of chemical bonding, a ...

"Lock and key" model. To explain the observed specificity of enzymes, in 1894 Emil Fischer proposed that both the enzyme and the substrate possess specific complementary geometric shapes that fit exactly into one another. This is often referred to as "the lock and key" model.: 8.3.2 This early model explains enzyme specificity, but fails to explain the stabilization of the transition state ...
