Another problem when default InProc mode is used, is that sessions are deleted every time when application restarts or stops. This could happen very often, see Restart and Stop of ASP.NET Application tutorial. Sessions stored in SQL Server database remains intact during web application restarts.

How to store ASP.NET session state on SQL Server

ASP.NET Session State allows four modes to specify where you want to store session data: InProc, SQLServer, State Server and Custom. Default mode InProc, is fastest and default mode, but not useful in many scenarios.
