Does car insurance "follow" the car or the driver? A new answer to the oldest question in the book. Imagine you've just been injured in a car accident. The at-fault driver informs you that he does not have insurance personally, but the owner of the car (which he borrowed) does. Under Texas law, will your injuries be covered by an insurance policy?

Does Insurance Follow Car or Driver? Texas Attorney Explains

Borrowed cars. If you cause an accident while driving a borrowed car, the car owner's insurance pays claims. If the owner doesn't have insurance, or doesn't have enough to pay for the damages and injuries you caused, your insurance will pay. If you don't own a car, but borrow a car often, you can buy a nonowner liability policy.

We have been unable to locate any state laws that regulate auto-renewing contracts in general. House Bill 1702 from the 80th Regular Session of the Texas Legislature sought to restrict the automatic renewal of contracts, but this bill did not become law. If you have questions about a specific contract, please consult with an attorney for a legal opinion.
